Awadh & Britishers:-

(a) 1801:- Lord Dalhousie described Awadh as a cherry that will fall into their mouth one day.

(b) Reasons for Interest in Awadh:-

(i). Agriculture:- Soil was quite fertile and ideally suited for the production of indigo and export to world markets.

(ii). Market:- Commercial interests of East India Company guided and attracted it towards Awadh as principal market of Northern India.

(iii). Annexation:- It will complete the process of formalised annexation of India which started with the conquest of Bengal in 1757, Battle of Plassey exactly 100 years ago.

(4) Britishers adopted following policies for the annexation of Awadh in 1857:-

(i). Subsidiary Alliance (Lord Wellesley in 1798).

- withdrawal or disbanding of troops of the emperor.
- Moving in of British troops within the empire.
- Increase in military dependence on the Britishers by the emperor as he had no choice left.
- Emperor was unable to assert control over the rebellious zamindars who asserted autonomy.
- Resident:- All the major decisions of the emperor had to be ratified by the resident of Britishers.
  - The resident was permanently to be settled in Awadh.

(ii). Doctrine of Lapse:-

- According to this policy, rulers who had no sons, ~~as~~ their kingdom was to annexed as there was no legal heir.

(iii). Summary settlement :-

- Considered as against the interests of Taluqdars
- Direct revenue settlement with peasants, excluded taluqdars as intruders into the rural society.

Conclusion :- All these policies were considered as responsible for the annexation of Awadh in 1857.

→ Consequences :- Severe outpouring of grief, collapse of court, social instability, Revolt against the British rule.

(iv) Urbanisation :- (19th century)

- Development of large scale urban centres.
- Urban centres had worldwide facilities developed by Britishers.

(v) End of Mughal symbolism :-

- Towns associated with Mughals such as Agra & Delhi now lost their symbolic importance.

(10) Emergence of new centres:- New centres like Hyderabad, Surat and other places grew over time as a variety of trading and commercial functions were practised there.

(11) Kolkata, Bombay, Madras:- Three main centres of British rule new forms of Architecture were developed and several measures were taken which resulted in the formation of developed centres. Eg:- Clearing of Ghats in Kolkata.

(12) Small centres:- No specific attention was paid to small centres for development as the Britishers did not have any colonial or trading interests there.

Conclusion:- Thus we can conclude that the urbanisation pattern during 19th century had enough variations as some centres were paid enough attention whereas others were neglected there were variations in the composition of population too.

- New modes of transportations were introduced.
- Hill stations were developed too.

(i) Based on Govt. of India Act 1935.

- Promised a Representative form of govt. for British India.

→ Results of Election:-

(ii) Congress :- Performed very well in the seats (general category).

→ More than 80% votes.

→ Majority in 5 provinces including United Provinces.
→ formed govt in 8 provinces.

• Muslim League :- Fared very poorly in the elections

→ failed to win even a single seat in NWFP.

→ won only 2 out of 84 seats in the reserved category.

→ Conflict between Congress & Muslim League:-

(iii) United Provinces:-

→ Congress got a majority

→ Muslim League wanted to form govt alongwith Congress.

26

→ Congress Party :- Refused to accept this offer.

- Reason:- Muslim League supported landlordism, while Congress wanted to abolish it.
- Although Congress had made no significant achievement in this field.

→ Muslim League :- Realised that in a Hindu-majority nation, it would never be able to come into power.

- They will always remain marginalised players in the politics of the nation.

(vis) Demand for a separate Pakistani nation by Jinnah but this idea also had several obstacles.

14 (14.1). Imperial ideologies were disseminated in the following manner:-

(a) → Chronicles :- Account of the events of the king's reign.

- Glorious events & dominion ~~conquering~~ victories were recorded in it.

- Rulers appointed the courtiers to write an account of the dynasty.
- Purpose :- vision of an enlightened kingdom & preserve accounts for posterity.

Eg :- Badshah Nama & Akbar Nama.

→ Mughals transmitted their grand vision through writing of dynastic histories.

(14.2) Royal orders considered of Divine ordinance due to the following reasons:-

- Mughal kings tried to establish their authority by claiming to be the kings of divine origin.

This was done through following arguments:-

(i). Alanghwa:- Mongol queen who was impregnated by a ray of sunshine passed this to the offsprings.

(ii). Farr-i-Izadi:- Abu'l fazi idea of hierarchy of objects receiving light from God. Mughal king was the high station in this hierarchy. Influenced by Suhrawardi

- Thus, Mughals expressed themselves as they were associated with the gods directly.

(14.3). Following sources were used to describe the vivid account of Mughals:-

- Records & Narratives of ruler's actions.

- Interrogation of servants of the state.

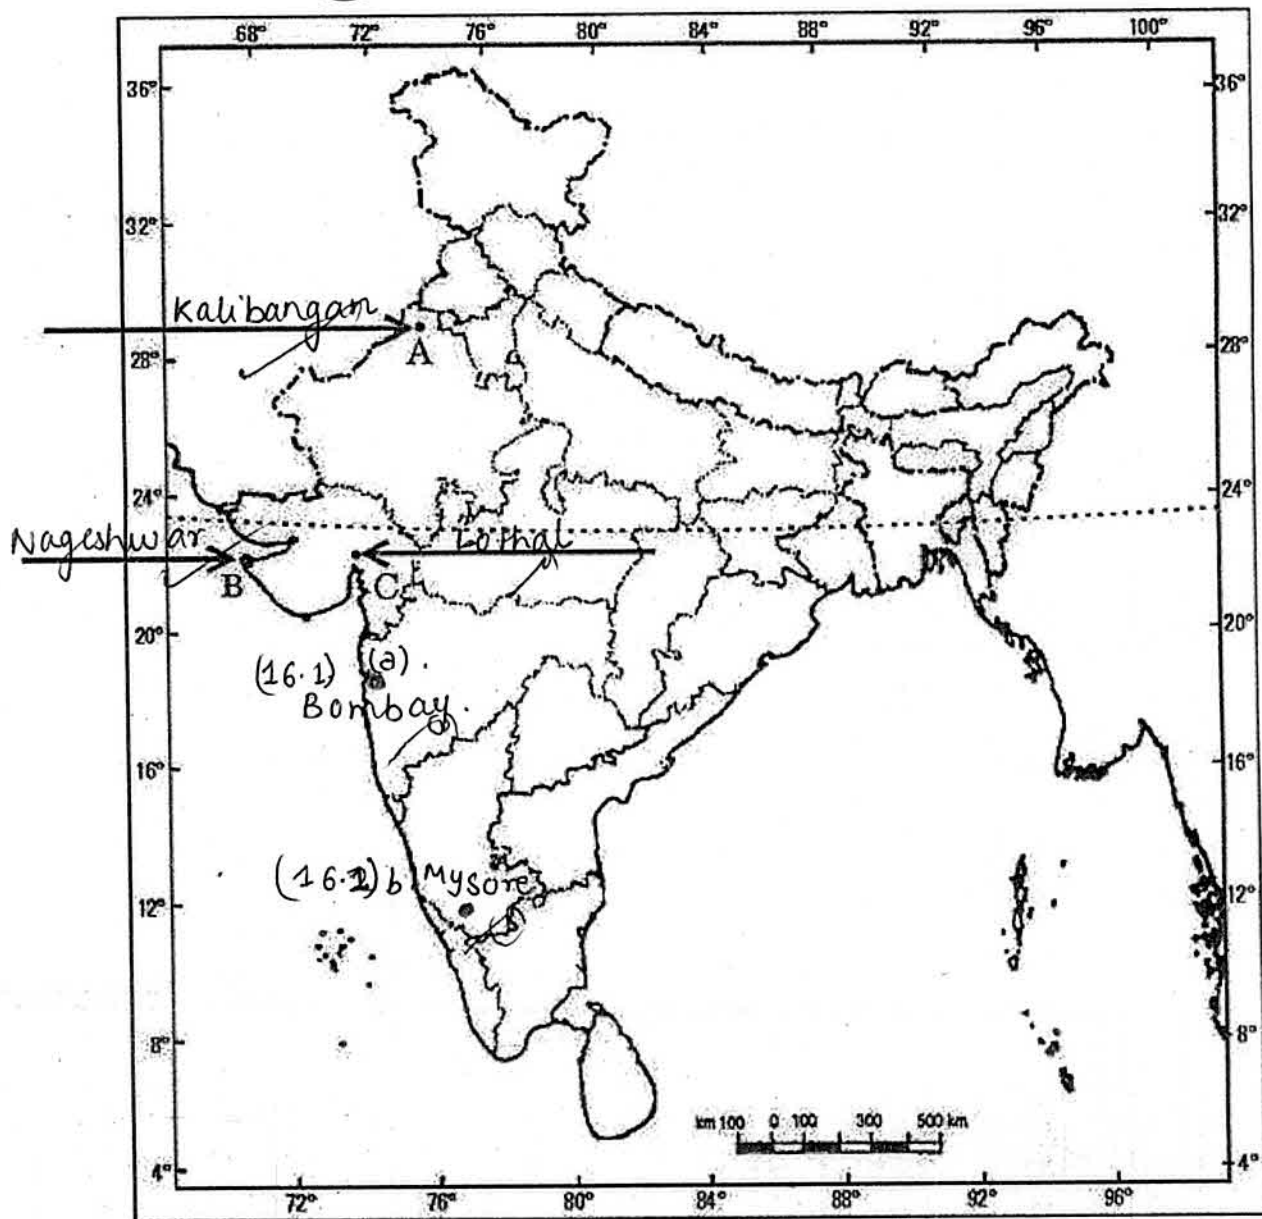

- Info. from old members of the family.
