1. Read the following passage carefully :

- (1) Almost everyone engages with social media in some form. Whether it is updating a status, sharing photos of a family gathering, or scrolling through friends' vacation highlights, it is inevitable that most individuals use online social platforms.
- (2) People tend to view social media as synonymous with shallow interactions, digital obsession, or the carefully curated presentation of an idealised life. But researchers often define it as "an extension of human social connection", says a professor of digital anthropology. "It is something that fulfils the fundamental human need for belonging" as it is an integral part of modern communication, relationship maintenance and even identity formation.
- (3) "It is not inherently harmful", adds a social psychologist. "It can be positive or neutral." Some researchers argue that social media helped us adapt to an increasingly mobile world. Digital sociologists pioneered this perspective, comparing social media usage to the community gatherings our ancestors valued as a means of maintaining social bonds.
- (4) People are usually resistant to thinking about social media as anything but problematic. It is true that there are some types of engagement that should be avoided, such as social media use that fosters unhealthy comparisons or contributes to a poor self-image. In such scenarios, no one benefits. Social media engagement can also be both active and passive. Active engagement refers to directly creating and sharing content, commenting on others' posts or initiating online conversations. An active user contributes original material and drives discussions. Passive consumption, on the other hand, involves more observational behaviour like scrolling without interacting, watching without commenting or reading updates without acknowledging them, while still allowing content algorithms to shape one's feed through these subtle interactions.

- (5) It is interesting to note that social media usage also reveals something about the relationships people have with themselves and others. The type of content someone shares often reflects their values and self-perception, which are key aspects of personal identity.
- (6) Research has found that mindful social media use can enhance connection, while other studies have found it can serve as a platform for self-expression and creativity. So, approach your feed thoughtfully, remembering that some benefit can come from it when used with the right intentions.

Answer the following questions, based on the above passage :

- (i) Why does the author say that social media usage is a reflection of relationships ? 1
- (ii) Mention any two benefits of 'social media'. 2
- (iii) Complete the following sentence suitably with one difference between the author's opinion and that of people about social media. Generally, people do not readily accept _____. 1
- (iv) There is also a behavioural distinction to be drawn between active and passive engagement in social media. (Paragraph 4) 1
- Based on the above statement, classify the following sentences as active or passive engagement.
- Sentence 1 : Meera posted photos of her art exhibition and responded to every comment.
- Sentence 2 : Aditya spent two hours scrolling through his feed without liking or commenting on anything.
- (v) Choose the correct option : 1
- ..... mindful social media use can 'enhance connection' (Paragraph 6)
- The above statement is true because :
- (A) We can maintain relationships despite physical distance.
- (B) We always enjoy seeing what others are doing.
- (C) We believe everything that we see posted online.
- (D) To connect, one needs to follow many accounts.

- (vi) Complete the following suitably : 1
The author puts forth the fact that people can never _____ (avoid/appreciate) social media.
- (vii) Complete the analogy with one word from paragraph 2. 1
genuine : authentic : : _____ : fabricated
(A) idealised (B) curated
(C) shallow (D) extension
- (viii) In the line ‘People tend to view social media as synonymous with shallow interactions, digital obsession .....’ (Paragraph 2) 1
By the phrase ‘digital obsession’, the writer means _____.
(ix) What type of social media usage does the author disapprove of and why ? 2
(x) The phrase – ‘It is something that fulfils the fundamental human need for belonging’ suggests that social media should not merely be associated with shallow interactions.
Choose the correct response (A) or (B) which confirms that the concern this phrase points towards is about : 1
(A) Some types of social media engagement should be avoided.
(B) Social media can be viewed as part of our need for social connection.

2. Read the following passage carefully : 10

(1) Introduction :

Students constantly seek methods to enhance their learning experience and academic performance. This research shows that music has long been considered a potential factor in creating productive study environments. It examines the influence of different music genres, including classical Indian music, on students’ concentration, retention, and overall study effectiveness. The current investigation provides insights into how various musical elements impact cognitive functions during study sessions among secondary school students. The study is relevant in the present times as digital influences govern our lives to quite an extent and pose a distraction.

(2) Methodology :

A structured questionnaire along with controlled study sessions was employed to gather information on the subject. Participants were exposed to different music conditions while completing standardized comprehension and memory tasks to measure performance objectively.

(3) Survey Examination :

Among the 140 study participants, 68 were boys and 72 were girls. For analytical purposes, the study considered both subjective preferences and objective performance metrics for each type of music condition during study sessions.

(4) Results :

| S.No | Music Type                    | Preference (%) | Performance Improvement (%) |
|------|-------------------------------|----------------|-----------------------------|
| 1.   | No music                      | 21·4           | 27·8                        |
| 2.   | Classical Indian (Instrument) | 18·6           | 33·5                        |
| 3.   | Popular music with lyrics     | 42·1           | 12·3                        |
| 4.   | Ambient/Background            | 17·9           | 26·4                        |

It is also seen that students showed varying preferences in music while they are studying. Though popular songs were most preferred, classical Indian instrumental music (particularly ragas like Bhupali and Yaman) demonstrated the highest performance enhancement. Instrumental compositions without lyrics generally yielded better results than vocal music across all genres.

(5) Implications for Learning :

It was observed that classical Indian ragas, designed with specific melodic patterns, had unique benefits for concentration and memory. The structured mathematical patterns in these compositions appeared to stimulate neural pathways associated with logical thinking, however, familiar songs with lyrics frequently caused distraction by activating language processing centres. The tempo and complexity of music also significantly affected concentration levels, with moderate complexity providing optimal stimulation without overwhelming cognitive resources.

(6) Conclusion :

Although individual preferences vary considerably, objective performance metrics indicate that instrumental music, particularly classical Indian compositions, can enhance study effectiveness for most students. The absence of lyrics, structured melodic patterns and appropriate tempo appear to be key factors in creating an optimal auditory study environment. Students would benefit from experimenting with different music conditions to determine what works best for their individual cognitive styles rather than simply choosing based on their personal preferences.

Answer the following questions, based on the above passage.

- (i) Choose the correct option : 1
..... instrumental music outperforms vocal music for study efficiency.
The above statement is true as :
(A) Instrumental music is less distracting than songs with lyrics.
(B) Classical compositions are inherently superior to modern music.
(C) Students prefer instrumental music as they can play the instruments.
(D) Vocal processing interferes with memory formation.
- (ii) Why does the author suggest that classical Indian ragas have unique benefits for concentration ? 1
- (iii) How does the author validate the claim that classical Indian music improves performance ? 2
- (iv) “The ideal study environment is highly individualised.” Analyse the statement with reference to the text. 1
- (v) Complete the following suitably : 1
The author puts forth the fact that personal music preference should not be the only _____ for selecting study accompaniment.

- (vi) Paragraph 4 includes the phrases, “preference” and “performance improvement”. 1

Classify the following sentences according to these concepts.

Sentence 1 : Most students chose to listen to popular music with lyrics during study sessions.

Sentence 2 : Test scores improved by 33·5% when students studied with classical Indian instrumental music.

- (vii) Give two points to support how music selection makes a major impact on study effectiveness. 2

- (viii) Read and complete the following sentence suitably :

The study is very relevant in contemporary times, because : 1

- (A) music is increasingly accessible to students.
- (B) academic pressure requires optimal study methods.
- (C) classical traditions are being forgotten.
- (D) concentration challenges are more prevalent with digital distractions.

Rich with a sprinkling of fair musk-rose blooms;

Battling with half a dozen pedestal fans on the shooting stage, The Boss read out a long speech. It was obvious that he too knew precious little about the poet (or the editor). The speech was all in the most general terms but here and there it was peppered with words like ‘freedom’ and ‘democracy’. Then the poet spoke. He couldn’t have addressed a more dazed and silent audience — no one knew what he was talking about and his accent defeated any attempt to understand what he was saying. What is an English poet doing in a film studio which makes Tamil films for the simplest sort of people?
